Art Activation Visual Artist Stimulus Initiative

A Letter to Visual Artist Supporters and Art Collectors

The Visual Artist Stimulus Initiative was developed to keep full-time artists working during this challenging time as we face COVID-19. Full-time artists typically do not have a traditional salary, they typically take in multiple projects at once to sustain themselves, their partners, and their families. These artists are creative entrepreneurs, educators at various schools and art centers, participants in gallery exhibitions, and muralists who create vibrant work for our communities and corporate spaces around the U.S. Many of them do not have a financial safety net, sick time, or vacation days to lean on, and are facing a halt in work with postponed and canceled projects. Income that was projected for the year is no longer promised.

The artists featured in this catalog are at various stages in their careers, each with a distinct style and message to share through their work. We have united as an artistic community to ask for your support at this time. We are inviting artist supporters, art collectors, and creatives alike who have monetary flexibility to contribute to this positive effort to keep our artist community working and thriving. To keep these artists afloat and alleviate some burden during this time, please consider the following:

- Purchase art from an artist listed in this catalogue.
- Commission a piece of art for your personal collection or for a corporate environment.
- Commission a mural. The design process can start now as that takes time, and the mural can be executed while maintaining social distancing.
- Donate money to any of these artists to help with day-to-day essentials. This can be a transfer via Bank of America Zelle, Chase QuickPay, CashApp, Paypal, or Venmo.
- If you are not in a position to purchase art please share this initiative and with your personal network.

As we navigate in these unprecedented times, we can still come together as a community and support one another. Let's maintain high spirits and follow safety precautions as we press forward.

Thank you for fostering our creative community.
We wish you and your family safety and well-being during this time.

How to Purchase:

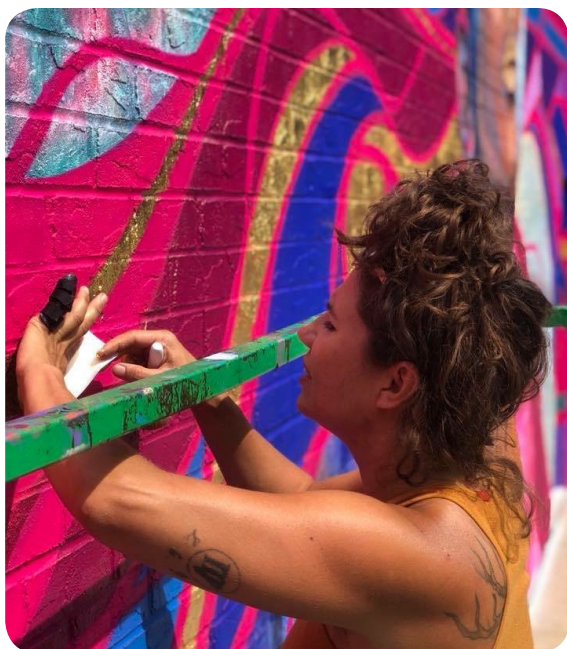

This catalogue highlights a sampling of each artist's work and, in some cases, past mural projects to visually inform their general aesthetic. We have pulled a few available works from each artist's inventory that are ready to be placed in a permanent art collection. If you would like to purchase work listed as 'available artwork for purchase' from this catalog, please inquire with the respective artist to initiate the art acquisition and they will share their payment methods. Because many states are practicing shelter-in-place, we are asking art collectors for patience until these temporary restrictions are lifted in order to ship or hand-deliver artwork.

Art Advisory | Custom Framing:

If you would like some guidance when selecting a piece of art for your home or office space, please consider partnering with Michelle Ruiz who is a curator that specializes in developing art collections for corporate and residential spaces. Based on your personal taste and space you are looking to fill, she will help navigate an art commission or find an existing piece to add to your collection while keeping your budget in mind. Ruiz is also knowledgeable in custom framing with access to hundreds of frame moldings and floater frames to enhance the presentation of your piece. She will guide clients in the discovery phase to explore paintings, photography, sculpture, or drawings from her diverse pool of artists.

"Art can heal, inspire, offer tranquility, and remind us of who we are and where we come from. Art can transport us to another dimension, oftentimes empowering individuals or societies as a whole. We are all collectors of some sort. What feeling do you wish to invoke when you are meditating on your personal art collection?"

Andy Bellomo

ARTIST BIO

Andy Bellomo is a visual artist, public mural artist, teacher and performer living and working in Chicago. She received her Master's in Education in Creative Arts in Learning from Lesley University in 2005. She has been creating large-scale public murals for over 10 years. Additionally, she specializes in stained glass artworks creating large glass pieces for galleries and homes across the U.S. Her work can be seen in Chicago and across the country. As a full-time artist, she divides her time between creating murals, educating youth, doing commissioned glass work and performing as a drag king. Andy has a strong belief in collaboration and cross-promoting fellow artists and community members. She is a dynamic member of the arts and LGBTQ communities and a strong activist and advocate for social change and human rights. Andy is also the creator and co-producer of Queer Lines, an annual three-part visual art, poetry, and drag king show.

Andy's most recent collaborative mural, "The Love I Vibrate," is depicted on the cover of the book, Art in Chicago Neighborhoods: Year of Public Art, a public art catalogue created by the Chicago Department of Cultural Affairs & Special Events (DCASE)/City of Chicago. In addition, she was awarded public art grants by The Field Museum, DCASE, and the Chicago Park District.

Her current studio work includes the Queer Mural Series with the above mural, "The Love I Vibrate," being the first in this collection. This is a series of murals that highlights the hard work and activism of the LGBTQ community in Chicago. Each mural features an Artist Activist who has been using art to create social change, demand social justice, while supporting and bringing our community together. Please follow updates on her work on Instagram @AndyBmix and at www.andybellomo.com

ARTIST BIO

Born in 1987 in the border town of Acuña, Mexico, Fernando Andrade has lived in San Antonio, Texas, since he was seven years old. During Andrade's early childhood years, it was considered safe for children to play outside and he remembers playing outdoor games with his family during those years. Today, however, the neighborhood where Andrade was raised is troubled with ongoing violence brought on by the leaders of drug cartels. Informed of the dire situation through stories told by friends and relatives, as well as by news reports, books, and online media, Andrade is disheartened that his hometown and other areas south of the U.S./Mexico border have become places of violence where people are disappearing or dying on a daily basis. Drug leaders intimidate and murder innocent victims, often disposing of bodies in barrels of acid or by filling garbage bags with body parts. For Andrade, the situation became personal in 2012, when a friend of his went missing, never to be seen again.

As an artist, Andrade copes with the turmoil in his native homeland with two distinct bodies of work: figurative drawings and abstract paintings. While the drawings are narrative explorations of the events taking place, the paintings are vehicles for nurturing feelings of hopeful joy and optimism.

In his figurative drawings, Andrade creates simple narratives based on stories he has heard about border violence. Believing that everyone has their own childhood memories and can identify with the innocence of youth, Andrade stages his scenarios using children in place of adults, a strategy for enticing viewers to engage in his conversation. He omits background details allowing viewers to project their own visualizations into each scene, and depicts wooden sticks, which he remembers playing with as a child, as metaphors for guns. In his series A Jugar la Guerrita (To Play a Little War), a young boy appears with a stick that is spewing off-color phrases in Spanish, in reference to the corruption that now pervades the region. In the series Tierra y Libertad (Land and Liberty), groups of children appear to be playing childhood games but, upon closer inspection, are surrogates for the perpetrators and their victims. In his God Bless America series, Andrade calls attention to the dangers of guns by superimposing intricately detailed images of branches over barely visible phrases relating to the American gun culture.

In his abstract paintings, Andrade expresses a freedom from the anguish that underlies his figurative works. Working improvisationally, the artist creates organic compositions that are colorful and animated. Viewing his process as a kind of spiritual meditation, Andrade becomes free to imagine cosmic visions that have rhythmic affinities with music or dance, and which celebrate the splendor and preciousness of life itself.

ARTIST BIO

Launching a visual arts career in Chicago at the age of 15, Sandra Antongiorgi had the rare opportunity to study under renowned muralists and artists, including Keith Haring. Known primarily for her gifted use of paint, and formation of concept, Antongiorgi has contributed to scores of murals that dot the Chicago cityscape. Her work has been showcased in several museums and exhibitions, including The National Museum of Mexican Art, Zhou B Gallery and most recently a solo exhibit at Advocate & Gochis Galleries in Los Angeles and the Center on Halsted Gallery. Antongiorgi has led and collaborated on many murals including, Weaving Cultures, which won the Chicago Readers, “Best Mural of 2017”. The mural is unique in that it features a transgender Latina, serves to bridge the gap between divided neighborhoods and honors underrepresented women of color. One of Antongiorgi’s more recent mural collaborations, “The Love I Vibrate” is an inaugural mural honoring our non-binary community members. In 2018 her collaborative mural, “Es Tiempo de Recordar” a longstanding iconic mural in Chicago was whitewashed by the city. This erasure immediately launched Antongiorgi into advocacy for the anti-erasure of murals, and pushing for a permanent public mural registry that would preserve and protect cultural murals in the City of Chicago. Subsequently, a registry is being established to catalogue and commemorate outdoor murals across the City of Chicago, and prevent complete removal or destruction. As a studio artist, Antongiorgi draws upon life experiences, power relationships, culture, boundaries, mysticism and spirituality. She explores the way in which social stigmatization is internalized, inhibiting the ability to see one’s abundant beauty and uses the human biology to reveal the inherent splendor within each and every one of us. Antongiorgi is dedicated to recognizing and responding to suffering. Her works expose the damage caused by family violence, incarceration and systematic marginalization. Antongiorgi’s work delves deeply into those struggles normally hidden from view. She invites us to see where many turn a blind eye.

ARTIST BIO + STATEMENT COMBINED

Caroline Liu

Artist | Muralist

Website: www.CarolineLiu.com

Email: CarolineLiuArt@gmail.com

Instagram: @CatsAndArt

Caroline Liu is a painter, seamstress, and muralist who bridges together two unique perspectives that form her identity. Liu's work explores her personal experiences as a late diagnosed autistic adult and her tribulations with short-term memory loss as a result of multiple concussions in the last decade. Her paintings and plushies serve as documentation of memories she'd otherwise forget, as well as visual and tactile stimuli that provide her with restorative relief.

By balancing between the two, her work communicates universal narratives that reflect feelings of loss, comfort, confusion, and happiness. These themes are explored through transporting viewers into her own imagined daydreams filled with bright pops of color, textural elements, and refractive light.

Liu holds a BFA in Painting and Drawing from the University of New Mexico and has exhibited work in galleries all across the Midwest and the Southwest. She has painted murals throughout the Chicagoland Area, as well as for international companies such as Adidas, Vans, Goose Island, and Lululemon. She is an artist in residence alumni at the Chicago Artists Coalition, the Chicago Art Department, and the Hyde Park Art Center. Her work has been published in various publications, including New American Paintings and The Chicago Tribune.

For all inquiries or art acquisitions, please email Caroline Liu directly.

ARTIST BIO

Abena Motaboli is a Chicago based educator, facilitator, and visual artist. Her art practice is performative, contemplative, and transformative. Influenced by her home country Lesotho and Southern African culture, she uses plastic, tea, dirt, coffee, charcoal, and ephemeral material to comment on displacement, her past memories, and the culture of making. Her medium includes plastic installations, painting, and meticulous, meditative lines.

With the need to find the quiet spaces amidst times of uncertainty especially in our current global climate, she invites the audience to find a space to contemplate.

ARTIST BIO

Juan-Carlos Perez is a visual artist who was born in Juarez, Chihuahua, Mexico and immigrated to Los Angeles, California at an early age. He later moved to Illinois to pursue a degree in Fine Arts at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago. Juan-Carlos lived in Chicago Illinois for 21 years as practicing studio artist, arts educator. His work has been on view at numerous art spaces and galleries throughout the U.S. and most recently at the National Museum of Mexican Art in Chicago. Juan-Carlos is a recipient of the 3ARTS Chandler Award in the category of teaching arts. He is currently living in Long Beach California.

Through the use of 2D, 3D, & Installation work, Juan-Carlos creates intense landscape spaces where visual & complex relationships revolving around the themes of politics, immigration, violence, racism, religion (etc) are interwoven with under current histories. These spaces create a context where different perspectives, ideals & concepts confront and challenge one another.

Juan-Carlos is part of The Chicago Act Collective, a group of socially & politically engaged artists that create many forms of resistance through the use of art that promote collaboration and dialogue across multiple communities that reflect and respond to current and local needs identified those directly impacted.

As an independent teaching artist, Juan-Carlos Perez, partner with arts organizations such as Chicago Arts Partnerships in Education (CAPE), Chicago Public Schools, park districts, community centers, etc. teaching a variety of visual arts which include: rigorous arts education integration, modern arts, cultural arts, public art and mural making (painted and mosaic). His role as an Arts Educator has given him the opportunity to work with many diverse communities within the city of Chicago, Detroit and West Africa.

His method of teaching allows students to pay attention to their art processes and their way of thinking so that they can create an honest, artistic interpretation of themselves or their community. Just like in his own art making practice, Juan- Carlos sees the importance of how personal histories affects the creative art making process. When it comes to working with individuals who have no experience with the visual arts student need to investigate with-in themselves in order to find their voice. It is important that each community Juan-Carlos works with produces artwork that has substance, meat, and a fury that will engage the viewer. That no matter the art medium, it's authenticity comes across as intense, powerful, subtle, honest and genuine.

“We are each individuals who come from rich histories, struggles, achievements and failures. I want the student artists to have an unforgettable art making process, which allows them to take complete ownership of the work”.

David Anthony Geary

Transdisciplinary Artist | Muralist

ARTIST BIO

David Anthony Geary is a transdisciplinary artist working in a variety of mediums. His visual training took place in New Orleans, LA at Xavier University. He remained in this uniquely attractive city to absorb as much of its great culture and heritage as he could. Inspired by beauty. Culture and life experiences fill his work along with the discovery of newness. Constantly pushing, searching and discovering the new while at the same time holding on to the old. It's not just an aspect of David's art but an aspect of his character that finds its way into the art. Communicating his perspective of the world around him through a visual language, he became fluent in many dialects of visual art. Building a career as an artist, an educator, as well as a family in New Orleans, has greatly influenced his work both visually and conceptually. His work incorporates painting, printmaking, collage, assemblage, sculpture or photography. The nuance of the human experience, both the introspective and observed are an integral part of his process.

Inspired by culture, beauty, science, mythology and experience. My work is simultaneously engaged in the now, then and still to come. Consistently pushing, searching and discovering the new while at the same time holding on to the old. It's not just an aspect of my work but an aspect of me that finds its way into the things I create. The nuance of the creative experience, both the introspective and observed are an integral part of my process. Each piece is a dance between intention and intuition, a process of exchange, discovery and experimentation informed as much by the moments of their creation as the research that proceeds them. The portrait specifically serves to explore the nuance of identity.

ARTIST BIO

My paintings explore variegated shapes, moods and experimental aesthetics — how color and the play of color can trigger emotions with or without recognizable/representational forms within organic movement.

These paintings allow color itself to become an expression of shape. These combine to form an expressive value on the canvas.

The works are partly inspired by my fascination with nature, specifically flora and its geometry, as well as my practice in quilt-making and textile production.

The paintings express a condition, too — a new stage in my career. They show greater focus upon the very act of creating art.

I am an emerging artist. I was born in Los Angeles and grew up in Chicago. I graduated from Columbia College Chicago with a BA. I started my art career full time in 2019.

Instagram: @midnightolive

ARTIST BIO

Olivia Guterson is a Detroit-based interdisciplinary artist. Deeply influenced by the textures, landscapes, and patterns of her upbringing and heritage; her work focuses predominately in black and white for its stability, intensity, and honesty. She has developed an obsessive style of line-making and pattern-working that emphasizes the delicate beauty and balance of the human hand.

Guterson's work is both personal and universal, as she draws upon her lived experience with identity, motherhood, safety, race, gender, and notions of home and place.

For all inquiries or art acquisitions, please email Olivia Guterson directly.

John Gascot

Artist

Email: jgascot@gascot.com

Instagram: @jgascot

ARTIST BIO

Latin American/Caribbean artist John Gascot spent the first twelve years of his life in Puerto Rico, a fact to which he attributes his love of bold color. While he creates in a variety of styles, Latin Pop paintings are his signature. He affectionately coined the style “Latin Pop” after years of unsuccessful attempts at categorizing the work as one genre or another. The series combines elements of Pop, Cubism and Folk and is flavored with a Latin/Global sensibility.

The figures in John’s works are often large and curvaceous. Their mass speaks more about strength and presence than actual size. He strives to create art that is accessible and promotes diversity while celebrating and challenging social and gender roles dictated by various cultures.

For all inquiries or art acquisitions, please email John Gascot directly.

Salvador Vega

Artist | Muralist

Email: salvador1957vega@gmail.com

Instagram: @salvador.vega.359126

ARTIST BIO

Salvador Vega has been an artist and muralist in Chicago since the 1970s. He attended Harrison High School and went on to the Art Institute of Chicago. As a student he was part of the protests demanding better education that resulted in the building of Benito Juarez HS. He was also a key leader demanding more rights and representation at the Art Institute and led the walkouts as a student there.

For four decades he has been part of the most significant large-scale murals and commercial signage in Chicago, from community murals in schools and banks to factories and warehouses, Vega has been at the upper tier of maestros of the genres.

He is often the technical support for artists pushing their own boundaries concerning scale and style.

His color choice and geometric flows in composition elevated art to a new era in design and stamped Chicago art with a distinctive recognizable voice. Together with his social-political ideology and roots in social action, Salvador is one of the few artists who manages to never compromise substance over style.

For all inquiries or art acquisitions, please email Salvador Vega directly.

Website: www.artedeavi.com

Email: artedeavi@gmail.com

Instagram: @artedeavi

ARTIST BIO

Anavictoria Avila (aka AnaV) is a visual artist, illustrator, educator, and an advocate for youth justice and disability rights. She received her Bachelor's in Violence and Youth Development and minor in Art Practice from the University of California, Berkeley in 2014. Her art career launched in Chicago when she would escape from the pressures of law school by teaching therapeutic paint nights for youth in the local community and for university students.

She paints colorful memories with movement, energy, and identity in each piece. Being born in Southern California, but with her family roots planted in Atoyac, Jalisco, her complex experiences of mixed identity, the beauty of baile folklórico, the richness of her Mexican heritage, and the strength of her community is what inspires her artwork. She grew up in Anaheim, California, raised by a single mom, who had to sacrifice everything to make ends meet for her three children to advance in their education. Being raised and surrounded by strong women, the theme of feminine resilience is also elevated in her artwork.

“Many of my paintings are inspired by my family and friends, who have overcome many obstacles and continue to represent their community with resilience and courage in higher education. My art celebrates the experiences, efforts, and tenacity of these incredible women and the communities they come from.”

Roland Santana

Instagram: @iii.____.iii

ARTIST BIO

Born May 11, 1995 in Vienna, Virginia. His parents who immigrated from Guatemala and Bolivia exposed Santana to painting in a non-creative way while working in his father's construction company in his early teen years. During the recession of 2008, him and his father would remove objects and furniture from foreclosed homes, then clean and paint the walls white, leaving no trace of its inhabitants. This was an emotional process for Santana but also gave him an awakening of value for material and life. Painting almost five houses a day, Santana began to realize the skid marks and stains, capturing movements of families who would live in the home prior to cleaning. Working with his father he learned the importance of aesthetics and functionality, he decided to pursue a more artistic practice and came to study at Columbia College Chicago in 2014. Upon moving to Chicago he was surrounded by creatives from all different realms: musicians, filmmakers, photographers, street artists, all great influences. The community Santana found himself in allowed for him to gain knowledge of different methods of painting, and support in the local industry. Through Santana's paintings, drawings, and mixed media artworks, we are taken on deconstructed journeys. American landscapes, personal life events and celestial imagery are composed through Santana's 'Micro-Collision' of marks and mediums. The vast openness of the canvas gives the viewer a chance to see the paintings as a much bigger part of the surrounding space, colors are transforming, transmuting, unlocking the passage of reality to a dream world. The minimal contents of his work makes us question if what Santana makes are paintings at all, it is puzzling and weird. There is an intriguing dark side but also formal precision. Roland Santana is a rainbow ranging from electric lime green to melancholic shades of purple and pink. He is luminous and dark. Today Roland Santana has gained the likes of several galleries and collectors and has participated in showcases in spaces such as Mana Contemporary, Chicago Art Department, Workshop 4200, Heaven Gallery, Chuquimarca Projects and more.

ARTIST BIO

My personal works are a subtle interpretation of social issues, politics, and experiences that have shaped me. I work in acrylic paint because its quick-drying qualities force me to let go of second guessing and to embrace my brushstrokes. I am greatly inspired by the work of Kehinde Wiley. The idea of combining two contrasting styles in a way that creates unity and harmony has greatly influenced my own style of painting. My final detail on portraits are carefully placed white outlines to emphasize the purity of my subject. The dividing line is a way to focus solely on the main subject and to draw your own conclusions as to how the main subject and background are connected. In portraiture I find this to be especially fun because often the color used is the aura of the muse. I want my viewers to abandon any preconceived notions and to think about the subject within those created lines as I have also chosen to do.

ARTIST BIO

Kory was born and raised in Cedar Rapids, Iowa to a father involved in local politics turned pastor and a late mother who was an architectural engineer. His first camera was a Fisher Price Polaroid camera he got as a child for Christmas. The camera fascinated him but with 3 other siblings in the household it was financially impossible to acquire photography equipment during his young developmental years to feed his disposition.

The artist in Kory was still apparent in his younger years and he turned to acting and stand-up comedy for creative release. Performing in Iowa, without a solid direction, he was torn between pharmacy school and following his talents as an artist. On the first day of pharmacy school Kory's mother died of cancer and in those moments Kory realized how short and precious life truly is and he decided to give up pharmacy school and moved to Los Angeles to pursue an acting career.

Living in L.A. he found himself going through the typical starving artist lifestyle of living in his car for months at a time but trained as an actor with James Dean's and Marlon Brando's acting coach Zina Provendie all the while. At the same time he was studying sketch/improv at the L.A. Connection Improv Theater as well. The week of graduation from improv school he got a call from MTV per the request of his childhood friend Ashton Kutcher. Kory was to report to a random garage for a project to shoot a commercial. His performance in the commercial went well and he was cast for several episodes of MTV's Punk'd. This work laid the ground work for him as an actor and he moved to New York shortly after and booked a role on Law and Order: Criminal Intent along with a handful of other films and radio commercials.

In 2008 following the not-so-successful American release of international film "Loins of Punjab" Kory returned to his hometown and started his own web content production company focused on photography and video. Since then Kory has been developing his skills behind the camera and investing in professional equipment.

As a photographer one of his highlights was a 2015 trek to the Eastern Himalayas via Malaysia, Thailand and Burma that produced some of his greatest images of remote regions to date. Currently Kory and his wife live in Chicago where he is a freelance photographer and runs his web content production company. He also continues to pursue his acting career and is represented by NV Talent in Chicago.

"The culture driven and photogenic city of Chicago it has regenerated the drive I once had as a young actor and helps me perpetually develop my skills as a photographer while being immersed in a pool of diverse community artistry and marketing capacities."

ARTIST BIO

Rubén Aguirre is a Chicago based painter who has transitioned from graffiti writing to abstract painter/contemporary muralist. He has produced a number of murals in the Chicago land area, across the U.S., and abroad. Aguirre's work is an intersection of abstraction, graffiti and formalism that takes influence from textiles and nature. With traces of typographic letter structure from his graffiti roots, his work is informed by architecture and plays with re-imagining public space, while investigating pattern, texture, and color field through the use of the spray can. He has exhibited in The National Museum of Mexican Art, the Hyde Park Art Center, and the Chicago Cultural Center.

Born in Manila, Philippines, Eulalio Fabie Silva, III was named after his father who is an internationally acclaimed artist. De Silva grew up within an artistic environment which led him to follow in his father's footsteps by pursuing the visual arts. Eulalio emigrated to the United States in 1980 and later continued his quest to become an artist while attending the School of the Art Institute of Chicago in 1989.

De Silva draws inspiration from the famed Gauguin's ever questioning stance: D'où Venons Nous / Que Sommes Nous / Où Allons Nous (Where Do We Come From? What Are We? Where Are We Going?)... the question of our own identity, our immediate surroundings, and other beings. De Silva's main influences are from the plein-air artists and abstract expressionists of the 50's and 60's that favor the formal qualities of a painting process of building then rebuilding, creating then defacing while giving importance on expressing the internal turmoil and triumphs through brushstrokes and color.

Waiting To Meditate is a series inspired by recent meditations of ourselves as light beings with the physical bodies, the works in this series are expressions as well as explorations of that energy, light, and dilemma.

Subtle humor rests within the title in itself as a double-entendre in which seeing ourselves as hesitant beings not yet becoming towards our realization that we are already light creatures – meaning that we were already “created in the image of God or creator.” Therefore, “waiting” is an enigmatic and self-created symbolism by us. This self-fabrication is what separates us from those already self-realized such as the sages, the holies and/or the simple beings who professed simplicity in life in knowing that we are one with our surroundings.

With the undertones of Buddhist/Taoists within these pieces, the surroundings show the splendor of nature or the banalities of the urban space or tenements – in one's bedroom or living room space. These pieces are meant to parody ourselves in the midst of our busy lives whether we are in the ‘rat race’ to upend someone in the professional and corporate ladder or simply busy with our family lives. Like a detached actor in a play – on his/her soliloquy. Waiting for what? Waiting for whom? Or is he/she really waiting?

BIO

Michelle Ruiz is a Project Manager for Chicago Art Source, where she specializes in curating art collections for market segments including healthcare, corporate, hospitality, and residential clients.

Over the last ten years, Ruiz has built a wide network within the fine art industry by attending a number of national art fairs, gallery openings and arranging artist studio visits. Ruiz's mission during these visits is to build strong working relationships with fine artists that come from diverse backgrounds and art practices. Ruiz works closely with art consultants, collectors, interior designers, architects, and developers to bring their vision to fruition by carefully curating exquisite art collections for their spaces.

Civic engagement through the arts and board service is equally important to Ruiz. She is an advocate for the arts and promotes cultural inclusivity through grassroots art programming and local non-profit involvement. Ruiz currently serves as the Curatorial Director and Board Member for the Berwyn Public Art Initiative. This initiative is a community-driven effort that brings together businesses, building owners, artists, and community organizations to install murals, sculptural objects, and pop-up galleries in the Berwyn, IL, community. Ruiz has also served as a board member on the following organizations: Parish Peace Project and Berwyn Arts Council. She also served as a Morton College Student Trustee.

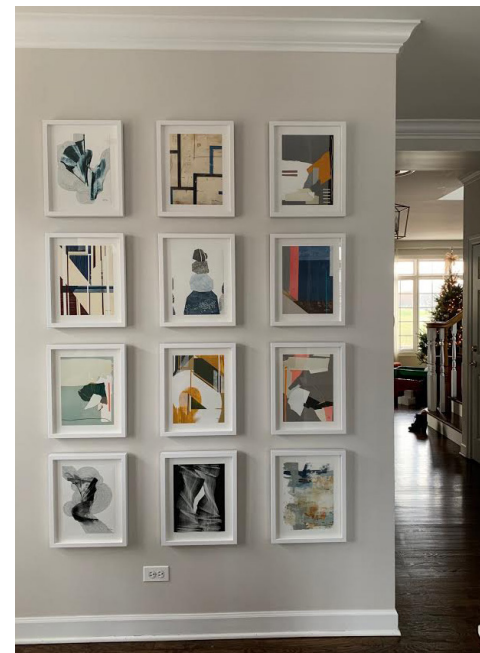

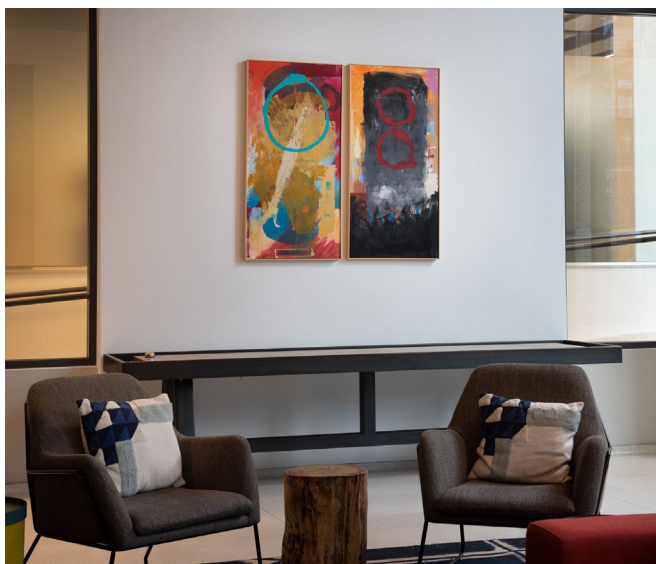

Ruiz earned B.A. from Columbia College Chicago with a concentration in Visual Arts Management.
